The Last Moments of Thaddeus Stevens.

SCENES AT HIS DEATH BED.

Opinion of Attorney General Evarts on the Revenue Commissionership.

The Office Not Vacated by Mr. Rollins' Resignation.

WASHINGTON, August 12, 1868. he Last Moments of Thuddeus Stevens. The death of Thaddeus Stevens caused general here to-day. The flags on the Capitol and all buildings were at half-mast. Although the eath of Mr. Stevens has been looked for nearly every day for the past six months when it occurred med to come upon the community quite unex sectedly. The usual daily bulletins announcing his ealth had led to believe that he was fast gaining strength enough to carry him to his home in Pennsyla, and it was generally believed that he would leave here for Lancaster about the middle of this week The principal disease which affected Mr. Stevens, of the heart, is known to be one of the most treacherous of all the human ailments. He has for a long time been laboring under the effects of this plaint, and about a year ago it was greatly aggravated by an attack of dropsy, which tended to his physical energies, and after every eccasion of excitability or unusual bodily exertion left him in a very prostrated condition. That he was fully prepared for the end there is no doubt, for he had long been aware of the fall tenure by which he held his life. Yesterday he emarked to those around him that he was fapidly sinking and had no hope of ever resuming his ac ed seat in the Capitol. The calmness and even theerfulness evinced by him so long as speech was left him were remarked by those at his bedside who m the scene a lesson never to be forgotten. On Monday he expressed considerable anxiety in regard to the state of the country, induced mainly perhaps by the current reports of apprehended trouble in Louisiana. He expressed a strong desire that Mr. John-son would abstain from any measures of a character ated to disturb the public tranquillity and hoped that no necessity might arise for the reassemng of Congress in September. In conversation with Mr. Simon Stevens about the same time he re-ferred to Mr. Evarts, the Attorney General, in terms of marked kindness and confidence. Yesterday at noon symptoms of approaching death were ob-served by those attendant upon him. He still was able to converse with those around him with com parative ease until between four and five o'clock became so weak that it was with much difficulty he moved or spoke. From many expression he used during the afternoon it was very evident he was fully aware of his approaching end. H s physician asked him about seven o'clock how he felt. His reply was, "Very mean, doctor." Mr. Stevens eclined from this time, but to the very minute of his death he enjoyed the clearest use of his faculties. His mind retained to the last its characteristic vigor, and he still possessed the power of speech. Not more than three minutes bedeath he beckoned Mr. Simon Stevens to wards him and said, "Give me some ice." Mr. Ste-vens passed around the foot of the bed to the other tained the ice and started to return to the side where the invalid lay. He noticed, as he approached him, a sudden pallor overspread his face. When he reached the side of the bed the life of Thaddeus

About ten minutes before his death sister Laretta nested the permission of his friends to perform the religious ceremony of baptism, and no objection ng offered the ceremony was performed amid mpressive silence, which was rendered more im-pressive by the stillness of the late hour of the night. this time his breathing was very much obstructed, and he seemed to suffer from a violent palpitation of the heart, but this passed off, and during five mintionless and quiet as if in a gentle sleep. To her who performed it this act undoubtedly appeared one of great importance, and the earnest and affectionate devotion with which it was done strangely affected those who witnessed it, even those holding a different faith from hers. It is of note that the sisters whose benevolent words had been so heartily seconded by the great departed in furnishing aid and lending his legislative behalf of the institution to which they are attached-Providence Hospital-vistted him daily during his illness and manifested a devotion which showed how fully they ap-preciated the charitable and beneficent spirit which had marked the life that was so rapidly drawing to a close. Many persons called to see his hast evening, but none were admitted until after about six o'clock, when two colored clergymen named Read and Hall, who had some months before expressed a desire to pray with him, were sent for request, and coming to his bedside invoked the divine blessing on him. One of these colored men was at the deathbed of John Quincy Adams. Mr. Stevens seemed somewhat affected at the prayers of these ministers, and at the close thanked with feeble voice and a pressure of the hand. Mr. Stevens had long been expecting to be called away from this life, and had grown familiar as i were with the King of Terrors. So little dread did the near approach of the great destroyer inspire him with that he frequently indulged in a serious Joke on the subject. While the High Court of Im peachment was in session Mr. Stevens was so ill that he had to be carried in an arm chair from his carviage to his seat in the Senate Chamber. For this purpose two stalwart men were employed by him, to whom he became a good deal attached. On one occasion, as they were bearing him up the Capitol steps, he looked over his shoulder at each of them and remarked with a grim smile, "What will I do for some one to carry me when you are dead and Mr. Stevens in his religious belief inclined towards the Baptist faith, in which he had been trained by his mother. He was never a regular attendant on divine worship, although he held the profession of religion in the greatest reverence Being asked on one occasion as to his religious be lief, he replied that he took for his guides his mothe and St. Paul. He strove to perform his duty to wards his fellow man and trusted the rest to God Every Sunday during his illness he was visited by Major General Howard, with whom he became quite Intimate. It was General Howard's custom on these occasions to read to him from the Bible or some religious book, and talk to him concerning the future of the soul. Mr. Stevens during these exer cises invariably listened with great reverence and marked attention, but when these ceremonies were concluded he nearly always manifested a feeling of relief, for, as he often said, he dreaded long ser ons as much as he did long speeches.

During the past few years of his life Mr. Stevens had devoted himself to the encouragement and advancement of all charitable institutions, and among them the Columbia Hospital, Soldiers' and Sailors Home, Deaf and Dumb Asylum and the Providence Hospital, in this city, were materially benefited exertions in their behalf. The Providence Hospital especially has been almost entirely established through his efforts. The hospital was first started by private subscriptions and placed in charge of the Sisters of Charity of the Roman Catholic Church. Mr. Stevens contracted a very great esteem for these plous, benevolent and noble women, and frequently said they seemed to him to labor for no reward but such as they might and in heaven. With great difficulty he succeeded in obtaining from Congress an appropriation for the incorporation of this hospital, and during the presession, despite the, most energetic opposition of the great economizers, he secured for the hospital an appropriation of $30,000 with which to creet an additional wing to the building, which, it is thought, will make it a self-supporting institution. The marked interest he took in this work earned for him the deep and lasting regard of the Sisters who presided over the hospital, and led them to be present at his deathbed, where they performed the rite of baptism upon the dying statesman.

It is understood that Mr. Stevens' remains will be interred in the Gettysburg National Cemetery, where he owns a lot. Some time ago Mr. Stevens resolved to purchase a burial lot, and he had nearly concluded for the purchase of one in a cemetary at Lan caster, Pa., when hearing accidentally that colored caster, Pa, when hearing accidentally that colored people were not permitted to be buried in the cemetery he withdrew from the purchase. He subsequently bought a large lot in the Gettysburg Cemetery. Some person asked him why he had provided himself with so large a tract of ground in a cemetery, he being without a family. "Well," he answered, "I will not need much of it myself, but some poor devils may want a last resting place some time, and they can turn in beside me." The arrangements for the funeral have not yet been fully completed, and will not be until the arrival here of Mr. Edward McPherson, Clerk of the House of Representatives, who was telegraphed to last night and is expected here early to-morrow morning. The religious ceremonies will probably be conducted by the chaplain of the Senate, the Rev. Dr. Grey, assisted by the Rev. B. B. Emery, of Pennsylvania The Rev. Dr. Boynton is absent from Washington, and cannot possibly be here in time to attend. The principal funeral will take place at Lancaster, at precisely two o'clock on Monday. The process of embalming the body was performed under the direction of the Surgeon General. The body lies' enshrouded in a full suit of black, with a black scarf around the neek. Among many others who have called this evening to view the remains of Mr. Evarts, Senator Sumner, General Eaken and Surgeon General Barnes. The body of Mr. Stevens will lie in state in the rotunda of the Capitol to-morrow from twelve o'clock noon, until its departure on the afternoon of Friday for Lancaster, whither it will be taken on a special train. The remains will be guarded on a company of colored zouaves of this

It is not known what course will be taken by the government authorities in regard to the funeral, but it is thought that an effort will be made to show to the memory of the illustrious deceased the proper degree of respect.

Pa., was held in the ladies' reception room of the House of Representatives this evening, and the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:-

lowing preamble and resolutions were adopted:—
Whereas it is the dispensation of an all wise Providence to remove from us our beloved friend and representative, Thaddeus Stavens, who has so ably represented us for fifteen years, and whose ability and energy were used to the latest period of his life in behalf of his country, therefore be it.

Resolved, That as citizens of Lancaster county and friends of the deceased we sympathize with the grief of true mourners in the bereavement which the Divine Providence has brought upon our nation, to which our lamented representative was always true and loyal in all the relations of life, for an a patriot and true gentleman we cannot hope to meet his equal. We miss his voice, so familiar to us at home, as well as in the councils of the nation, and we feel that his death has left a void which cannot be filled; for he was a veteran of a thousand fields and champlon siways of the right. Our blessed common schools to-day proclaim his wisdom and his might. night.

Resolved. That the Secretary be directed to transmit a copy of these resolutions to the friends of the deceased.

Law.

The new revenue law requires five different stamps to be affixed to the barrel of spirits. The first, or tax paid stamp, has already been noticed. The others are the distillery warehouse stamp, the wholesale liquor dealer's stamp, the stamp for stock on hand and the stamp for rectified spirits. The Engraving and Printing Bureau of the Treasury is actively engaged on these five stamps, and it is excollector of every district in the United States before the 1st of November next. All this will require over ten millions of stamps, for all of which new plates are to be made. It involves a vast amount of labor, after printing and before delivery to the collectors But the resources and facilities of the Bureau are believed to be equal to the emergency.

Appointment of Storekeepers.

The names of the parties who have been appointed storekeepers under the new revenue laws are—Wm. J. Manker, for the Sixth Indiana district, and Wm.

The appointment of all subordinate officers under the act approved July 20 has been transferred from of the Treasury. This includes assistant accessors, inspectors of tobacco, cigars and snuffs, gaugers and storekeepers.

Interview of Journeymen Tailors With the President.

The President to-may received the members of the International Tailors' Union Convention in the East Room of the White House. About fifty delegates were present. The President was introduced to the members by Mr. Thomas B. Florence, and after shaking hands with them delivered an address thanking them for their visit and referring at some length to the question of labor and the efforts that should be made to elevate it. The President in dulged in no remarks of a political character whatever. The interview lasted about three-quarters of nation of Commissioner Rollins—The Power of the President to Fill Vacancies During

WASHINGTON, August 12, 1868. The following is the letter of Secretary McCulloch to United States Attorney General Evarts, and the opinion of the Attorney General in response there-opinion of the Attorney General in response thereto:—

WASHINGTON, August 7, 1868.

DEAR SIR—Enclosed I hand you a copy of a letter addressed by Mr. E. A. Rollins, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, to the President of the United States on the 8th day of June, 1868, and also a copy of the President's endorsement thereon, dated August 5, 1868. Under these circumstances the following questions are presented for your consideration:—

First—Is the office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue vacant?

Second—If the office is vacant when did the vacancy occur and can a successor to Mr. Rollins be appointed during the recess of the Senate?

The office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue being a very important and responsible one, it is desirable that there should be no doubt as to the legal status of the person in charge of it, I desire that you will favor me with your opinion upon the questions thus presented to you at your earliest convenience. Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

M. McCullooft,
Secretary of the Treasury.

Secretary of the Treasury.
To Hon. WM. M. EVARTS, Attorney General.

OPINION OF ATTORNEY GENERAL EVARTS. The following is the opinion of Attorney General Evarts on the resignation of Commissioner Rollins.

Evarts on the resignation of Commissioner Rollins, and on the power of the President to fill vacancies occurring during the recess of the Senate:

Attorney General's Oppice, August 10, 1868.

Hon. Hugh McCulloch, Secretary of the Treasury:
Sir.—I have given to the subject submitted to my consideration by your letter of the 7th inst. in relation to the present condition of the office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the most careful attention. The case presents itself as follows:

E. A. Rollins, holding the civil office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue, to which he had been appointed by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, addressed to the President, under date of June 8, 1868, the following letter:

Oppice of Internal Revenue,

OFFICE OF INTERNAL REVENUE,
WASHINGTON, June 8, 1868.
Size—In pursuance to apurpose known to my friends for several months I hereby tender you the resignation of my office, to take effect upon the quainfection of my successor, nominated by yourself and confirmed by the Senate.
I am, sir, very respectfully,

E. A. ROLLINS,

Commissioner of Internal Revenue

Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Upon the 5th of August, inst., the President piaced upon this letter the following endorsement:—"The resignation of E. A. Rollins, as Commissioner of Internal Revenue, dated June 8, 1868, is this day accepted." Upon these facts you desire my answer to two questions, viz:—First, is the office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue vacant? Second, if the office is vacant when did the vacancy occur, and can a successor to Mr. Rollins be appointed during the recess of the Senate?

The office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue is, as you suggest, a very important and responsible one. Its intelligent, efficient and faithful administration is a matter of the greatest interest to the public revenue and the public creedit; and it is justly a subject of solicitude with the President that his full duty under the constitution and the laws in respect to this office and its aliministration shall be fulfilled. The questions which you address to me come to be of practical and substantial interest in the executive administration of Congress known as the Tenure of Civ't Office bill, that has impressed upon a class of officers, which includes that now under consideration, a tenure of office at the will of the officeholder which cannot be terminated except by the concurrence of the President and the Senate in the appointment of a successor and his actual induction into the office. So long as the President, by force of the constitution and the laws, had the power to terminate the officeholder's possession of his office by a removal at the President's discretion, and against the will of the officer, the tenure of the latter's desired adherence or resignation of his office should have no special significance, for they could impose no restraint upon the time or manner of the President's exertion of his proper authority in the premises. The precise effect, therefore, of the legislation referred to is the first point for consideration. The purpose of the Tenure of Office Civil bill was to change the doctrine and practice of the government, by which removal from office at the mere discretion of the President had been established as a proper and, as had been thought, a necessary attendant of the executive duty and responsibility under the consideration to maintain the efficiency and fidelity of the public service in fulfilling the manifold and incessant obligations of administration and in execution of the laws. This purpose which might have been united to a requirement of the concurrence of the Senate with the Executive in effecting a removal from office, and yet left the capacity of removal as a separate and independent act open to the exigencies of the public service have been carried by the law to the extent of precluding a termination of the officer's hold upon his office by the united will of the Executive and the Senate, except by the sole and specific mode of the appointment, confirmation and qualification of a successor. This firm hold upon an office into which he shall once have been inducted is put distinctly by the act as a matter of the officer's right and title. The the session of the Senate, however flazitious and imperious his personal or official conduct may be except through the conditional process of impeachment.

During the recess of the Sena'e the remerital proceeding of temporary suspension for cause by the Executive, followed by accusation to the Senate, and judgment thereon is provided and may result in the removal of the officer without the necessity of the simultaneous appointment, confirmation and qualification of his successor. The language of the section securing the right and title to the office holder is too clear to admit of doubt. "That any person holding any civil office to which he has been appointed by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and every person who shall hereafter be appointed to any such office and shall become duly qualified to act therein is and shall become duly qualified to act therein is and shall become duly qualified to act therein is and shall be entitled to hold such office until a successor shall have been in like manner appointed and duly qualified, except as herein otherwise provided. Mr. Rollins then, at the date of his retter to the President, was entitled to hold the office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue until a successor should have been appointed by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and should have qualified; and the only interruption of this, his personal right possible under the law, was the general process of impeachment and judgment thereon, or the special proceeding of suspension, accusation and judgment thereon, provided by the act itself, and which obviously partakes of the nature of impeachment, it rested them, under the operation of this law, solely with Mr. Rollins to determine whether he would voluntarily put an end to his hold upon the office by a relinquishment or resignation of it, and the question whether the office is now vacant must, in my opinion, turn entirely upon a just construction of the effect of the letter of Mr. Rollins in this regard. This letter is manifestly framed w hands of the President a conditional resignation, which takes effect as an official or legal relinquishment of his office, upon such condition it is competent for the President to assent to the condition, or not, as may seem to him discreet, and in such a case an endorsement of this description would indicate his acquiescence in the dispositions of the office which had been made by the conditional resignation. I have, however, in the nugatory character which I have assigned to the letter of Mr. Rollins, sufficiently shown that, in my opinion, it possessed no legal or official operation whatever upon the office or the President's authority over it to which the endorsement could at thority over it to which the endorsement could attach itself, and I must consider that the office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue and Mr. Rolins' hold upon it remain the same as if his letter had not been written or the President's endorsement made thereon, and that the office is not vacant. This conclusion renders it unnecessary to consider or reply to your second question, which arises only in case I should have found reason to pronounce the office in question vacant. I have disposed of the matter submitted to me wholly with the premises of the existing legislation governing the question, and without any discussion of the larger topics touching the conformity or repugnance of this legislation with the consitution; for no such discussion would be appropriate to the inquires to which you have called my attention. which the endors tention.

With great respect, I have the honor to be your obedient servant.

WM. M. EVARTS, Attorney General.

The New York Circus, under the able management of Mr. L. B. Lent, is travelling by rail through Central New York. To-day its tent will be pitched in Utica, but the "great show" will not long remain pent up in that ancient town, for it matready builed to astonish on the very next day, the natives of old Oneida, with its "educated ponies," clowns and mules.

to astonish on the very next day, the natives of old Oneida, with its "educated ponies," clowns and mules.

Mile. Tostée arrived in this city on Tuesday last from Europe. She will not, however, appear at Niblo's just yet, but will join Mr. Bateman's auxiliary forces, which, under the generalship of Mr. Leonard Grover, contemplates giving a series of operas bouge in the principal Western cities and the Canadas. This reserve company of Mr. Bateman, which comprises among its artists such well known names as Mile. Tostee and Mile. Rose, sopranos, and Messrs. Decré, Leduc and Guidon, tenors, will, upon its return to this city in the fail, be merged into the company now performing in "Barbe Biene," when a grand season of opera bouge will be inaugurated.

Harry Palmer is at present in the "City of Brotherly Love," superintending the rehearsals of the "White Pawn," which piece, with all its original scenery, properties, costumes and bailet, as used at Niblo's Garden, is to be produced on the 17th instant, at the Chestnut Street theatre, Philadelphia. Between the "Black Crook" and "White Fawn," both of which pieces will be under full headway in that delightful city next week, our "broadbrins" neighbors are destined to enjoy a cool and refreshing treat of "ieg-drama."

The "Hubites" are again plunged into ecstatic bilss. The great organ concerning which a short time ago they did some "tall blowing." Is now played upon for their delectation every Wedneeday and Saturday morning. It is rumored that it annually takes $300 and twelve men to clean out the inside of this monster concern. The Hub at that rate is likely soon to become impoverished. The expense is enormous.

AN EXTRADITION CASE. Alleged Robbery of Five Thousand Dollars

by Faise Pretences.
On the 12th of July Messrs. Hull, Engleson & Co., of No. 52 Walker street, had a warrant issued for the arrest of Moses E. Luddington, a dry goods mer-chaht on Lake street, Chicago, on representations that he had defrauded the firm out of $5,000 worth that he had defrauded the firm out of $5,000 worth of goods by misrepresentation. Governor Fenton granted a requisition on Governor Oglesby, of Milnois, for the surrender of Luddington to the New York officials. The accused was arrested a few days ago by detectives Eliot and Dixon, of Chicago, and surrendered to Detective Barker, of the Fitneenth precinct, who arrived last night with his prisoner, and will hold him subject to the action of the Court of General Sessions, in which a true bill was found, it is said, against him. Detective Barker states that while en route to this city Luddington attempted to escape through the window of one of the cars of the Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Railroad.
